WRITING COMPETITIONS

Throughout the academic year we receive announcements regarding essay competitions and invitations to submit papers for publication in law reviews and journals. This information is posted on a bulletin board in OCS and in OCS Resources for Students on Blackboard. In addition to the intellectual and often economic benefits of these contests, the competitions are another way for you to demonstrate your legal writing abilities to employers. Because they are often sponsored by bar associations and other professional groups, they also provide excellent networking opportunities. Keep in mind that faculty members are a good source of ideas and guidance if you decide to participate. We have recently posted information regarding the following writing competitions:

The Faculty of Law at the University of Alberta has announced the Holocaust Remembrance Award, an annual international award for the best essay written by a law student on a topic relating to law and the Holocaust. The best essay will be awarded a certificate and an honorarium of $500 CDN. The submission deadline is July 1, 2010. For more information, go to www.law.ualberta.ca.

The Judge John R. Brown Scholarship Foundation has announced the 17th Annual Brown Award to recognize Excellence in Legal Writing. This year, there is no restriction on the topic except that the writing must be on a legal subject. Submissions must be accompanied by a letter of recommendation by a law school faculty member or legal professional. This year's stipend for the winner is $10,000. The submission must be postmarked by May 14, 2010.

The National Law Review (NLR) has announced its 2010 Law Student Writing Competition. This competition offers law students the opportunity to submit articles for publication consideration on the NLR Web site. Featured topics and submission deadlines are included below:
